ABD-EL-KRIM, leader of the Riffs against the French, is reported killed in battle.

It's not unlikely, for the Arab leader, a fighter by choice, does not conduct war from a safe distance, as do the rulers of Europe. And his death would mean more than a dozen deaths in our modern civilized war. With us, the power is in guns, gas, science and money.

With the Arabs, still living back in the days of Mohammed, the power was in personal leadership.

DAVID COWAN, a young Canadian, won $5,000 for the best essay predicting the developments in electrical industry between 1920 and 1930.

At the end of 1930, the American Superpower Corporation will give $10,000 to the essay writer whose predictions come nearest to the truth.

YOUNG COWAN knew nothing about electricity, when Bonbright & Co. offered the prize. He used his brains, studied the history of electricity in industry, let his imagination work, and WON.

Some time imagination does more than knowledge. The inventor of the sewing machine could not sew.

No one can guess at the possibilities of electricity in industry. For one thing, acording to Haldane, able British scientist, chemistry and electricity combined may make sugar as cheap as sawdust.

INDUSTRY already produces money on a big scale. The Dupont company is expected to "cut a melon," in the slang of Wall Street, by handing to its stockholders a bonus of $50,000,000 in stock. Increasing capitalization from 100 to 150 millions will do it. That will seem to stockholders more impressive than making sugar as cheap as sawdust. With such melons you can afford to buy sugar at old prices.

FRENCH FRANCS and Italian lire were weak yesterday. Our suggestion that war debts should be paid has a disturbing effect. But financiers that should know say that with debts refunded, on a fair basis, the nations' currency will revive.

"ENGLAND would not today have her pound practically at par had she not arranged to pay her debt. And what she saves in her gold purchases will be enough to pay her debt to America." So say the experts.

THIS IS a frightfully rich nation. The countries of Europe owe us ten thousand millions and will pay us, including interest, THIRTY THOUSAND MILLIONS in the next 61 years.

EUROPEAN DEBTS due to private American purchasers of Europe's obligations amount to eight thousand million dollars. These securities, averaging high interest rates, will compel Europe to pay our citizens $50,000,000 a year—with the principal when due.

OLD ROME, with her consuls pouring in money and slaves from conquered territory, was not nearly as "well fixed" as Uncle Sam. No wonder some of our friends in Europe worry, and ask "did we fight each other only to make Uncle Sam rich?"

Our answer is, "we didn't ask you to fight. Be wiser, next time."

TWO OF BRITAIN'S ablest scientists, J. S. Haldane and Sir John Cadman, tell a gathering of engineers that the age of coal is NOT passing, and that steam will crowd out the internal combustion engine—steam being more powerful.

Just as you were bidding goodbye to coal, and wondering what would happen when oil gave out, you are told that oil will do many things that coal can't do, but coal will be king.

MOST SURPRISING, to serious men, is the statement that steam, instead of gasoline, will be used in airplane engines—the combustion engine being "too inefficient."

THE WEST COAST of South America has recently known torrential downpours in places where rain had been unknown for generations. Scientists attribute the change in weather to the Humboldt current, said to have wandered from its course, several miles out into the Pacific and away from the coast.

SPECIALIST CALLED TO ATTEND WIFE TO NEW YORK FINANCIER

Glen Cove, N. Y., June 18 (A.P.)—Mrs. J. P. Morgan, wife of the financier, is seriously ill of sleeping sickness at her Sumter home at Mainecook Point on East Island, her physicians announced today. A morning bulletin said her condition was slightly improved.

Mrs. Morgan (formerly Miss Jane Norton Grew of Boston and married there in 1903) was stricken while attending church services last Sunday. Mr. Morgan, who was cruising in Long Island Sound on his yacht, the Corsair, was summoned by wireless and reached her bedside some hours afterwards.

He and his two daughters have been constantly at the bedside ever

HARVARD SENDS OUT ITS LARGEST CLASS

Under lowering skies, between occasional showers, Harvard University today conferred 1,568 degrees, the largest number in its history, at the Commencement exercises held in Sever Quadrangle, bringing to a close its 289th year.

The parade was led by President A. Lawrence Lowell, Governor Fuller and the other notables, many of them in cap and gown. Starting in front of the Administration Building, the parade passed around the yard to the Sever Quadrangle, where under a canopy the exercises took place.

Following a prayer by the dean of the Divinity School, the exercises were opened by Sheriff Fairbairn, who appeared in full regalia as he

TRACKMAN KILLED IN EAST BOSTON TUNNEL

John Mongan of No. 8 Elmwood street, Everett, a trackwalker employed by the Boston Elevated, was ground to death under the wheels of a subway train and a fellow trackwalker escaped a similar fate by a fraction of an inch in the East Boston tunnel today.

The accident occurred about a fourth of a mile north of the Atlantic avenue station and Mongan's body was so tightly caught in the running gear of the train that members of Ladder No. 1 were summoned to rescue the remains.

The trackwalkers in the subway travel in pairs. Mongan and his fellow-worker were making their way toward the Devonshire station, inspecting the tracks and third rail when a two-car train in charge of Motorman Charles O'Neill of No. 3 Homer street, Somerville approached.

The men failed to notice the approach of the train while the motorman, in the gloom of the tunnel, did not see the men in time to sound a warning blast.

Mongan was a few feet back of his companion when he was struck by the train and knocked to the tracks. The trucks of one car passed over his body.

Canada Will Form Secret Service to Aid U. S.

Ottawa, Ont., June 18.—Canadian co-operation with American authorities to prevent smuggling across the boundary—chiefly liquor—took concrete form today when parliament voted an expenditure of $350,000 to organize and maintain a Canadian secret service on the northern side of the line.

Contraband goods to the extent of $50,000,000 a year have been flowing across the border, according to officials estimates.

M'MILLAN SHIP BEATS FIRST LEG SCHEDULE

By HERT FORD

Aboard the Polar Ship Peary, Wiscasset, Me., June 18.—The first leg of Donald B. MacMillan's polar dash in search of the lost Amundsen and a new continent ended today when the Peary slipped into Wiscasset, taking the pretty Maine town by surprise.

Because the Peary had not been expected until later, only a handful of natives were on hand to greet the members of the party that sailed from Boston yesterday on the 150th anniversary of the Battle of Bunker Hill and amidst a deafening din.

MacMillan was not on board, the leader having raced by automobile over the road, with Flight Commander Richard E. Byrd, in order to be in Wiscasset last night to present diplomas to the Wiscasset High School graduates.

As soon as word of the Peary's arrival today filtered through the Sheepscot River town just beginning to liven for the Summer sea-

GOVERNOR AND FLIERS LAUD BIG PRIZE RACE

"The National Guard air race staged by the Boston Evening American marked a milestone in the progress of this branch of national defense," Governor Alvan T. Fuller declared today.

"It could not help but lead to public apreciation of the importance of the airplane in warfare, mock or real."

"Extremely satisfactory from every point of view," was the kernel of the statement of Major Charles H. Woolley, commanding the Air Service of the Twenty-Sixth Division, Massachusetts National Guard.

Major Woolley co-operated with the Boston Evening American in every possible way in organizing the flight of the six planes.

"It should encourage people interested in the quick delivery of mail packages," he added.

"Excellent military training for the men engaged, and an inspiration to those who weren't," said Lieutenant Robert J. Brown, Jr., of the East Boston Airport.

He added: "The successful flying contest from the East Boston Airport, during which reconnaissance missions to Plymouth, Providence and Worcester were carried out, was not only a practical demonstration of the ease and accuracy with which airplanes operate, it was a challenge to the popular imagination."

This newspaper "deserves unqualified commendation" for organizing

It showed the "people from Missouri" what airplanes can do, he stated today.

"Too many people think of planes as toys," he said. "They don't recognize that the age of flying is here."

"An object lesson," said Lieutenant A. E. Jones, U. S. A., instructor of the Twenty-sixth Division Air Service.

"It demonstrated the ability of the pilots, observers and enlisted personnel," he continued.

"The planning of the six flights over strange territory made it possible to test the observation powers of pilots and observers.

"The detailed information obtained by these men was in the hands of the commanding officers in Boston in less than two hours from the time each plane took off."

The $500 worth of prizes given by this newspaper were awarded at the Airport by Governor Alvan T. Fuller.

Many distinguished persons attended the presentation, including Lieutenant Governor Frank G. Allen, Major General Edward L. Logan, commanding officer of the 26th Division; Mrs. Edward L. Logan, Lieutenant Colonel "Tommy" Murphy, officer in charge of training and operations of the 26th Division; Colonel John W. Hyatt, chief of staff of the 26th Division; Major Pratt, Colonel Barrett Andrews, publisher of the Hearst newspapers in Boston, and James T. Williams, Jr., editor of the Boston Evening American.

THE WINNERS.

The winners of the contest were:

First—Lieutenant Chester E. Wright, pilot, and Captain Donald E. Currier, observer.

Second—Lieutenant Albert L. Edson, pilot, and Captain Louis E. Boutwell, observer.

Third—Lieutenant Julian S. Dexter, pilot, and Lieutenant Bert L. Devlin, observer.

Fourth—Captain Clarence E. Hodge, pilot, and Lieutenant George E. Sprague, observer.

Fifth—Lieutenant E. Stanley Beck, pilot, and Lieutenant Joseph K. Barber, Jr., observer.

A special prize was awarded to Lieutenant Walter P. Muther, pilot, and Lieutenant Conrad P. Richardson, observer. This prize was presented in chambers at the conclusion of the regular exercises.

The prizes offered by the Boston Evening American were: First, $200; second, $150; third, $75; fourth, Boston Evening American Cup; fifth, Boston Evening American Cup.

PRAISE FROM FULLER.

In the awarding of the prizes Governor Fuller, who graciously accepted the invitation of the Boston Evening American, congratulated each of the officers. As he handed first prize to the winners, the Governor said "My mind goes back to the James Gordon Bennett automobile cup races. I presume the publisher of the Boston Evening American had those cup races in mind when he instituted today's contest. This prize flight of today will show the possibilities of aircraft development both from the military and commercial viewpoints."

In presenting second prize he said he hoped the contest would serve to spur the men connected with the Air Service of the State to further endeavors.

Later, as he awarded another prize, he said: "I am sure today's prize flight will lead to an appreciation by the public of the wonderful possibilities of the airplane. This contest marks a milestone in this important branch of the national defense that you men are doing so much for."

son, there was a rush of inhabitants to the waterfront to take part in a tardy mass reception.

The Peary was tied up near the Bowdoin, veteran of previous MacMillan expeditions to the Polar regions, and both ships will finish taking on stores in time to sail Saturday on the second leg, which ends in Nova Scotia where the coal bunkers will be refilled.

The MacMillan sending apparatus operates on a short wave—40 meters—and John Reinartz, short-wave radio wizard, who will be the operator on the Bowdoin, tried out his apparatus by sending press reports.

Members of the Amateur Radio Relay League caught the stories and relayed them to newspaper office destinations as directed, the first dispatch, that sent to the Boston Evening American, being received by Joseph F. Beckham at Station 1 BD, at No. 1887 Beacon street, Brookline.

During the night broadcasting of newspapermen's stories, Commander MacDonald revealed that MacMillan is carrying twenty radio sets, complete as to batteries, antenna and the like, to distribute among missionaries on the Labrador and Greenland coasts.

Commander MacMillan was at the dock soon after the Peary arrived and personally supervised the loading of supplies aboard the Bowdoin and Peary. Although the Peary seemed to be well loaded many cases of goods were added to the piles already stacked upon her decks. The members of the crews worked in a drizzling rain.

MacMillan this afternoon planned to go to Brunswick to attend commencement exercises at Bowdoin College, his alma mater.

Studies of Eskimo flappers in color photography and of "red" snow and Arctic poppies and roses, and of new animal, bird and fish life, will be only one of the many features of Commander MacMillan's invasion of the Polar region.

Search will be made for a supposed "lost continent" which some scientists think has an area of a million square miles, supposed to be rich in coal and minerals, fertile with vegetation and flowers in Arctic Summer and populated by animals and birds and possibly by human beings.

Peary reported a vast blossom-strewn waste near the North Pole on one of his last voyages, but doubt exists among explorers and scientists whether what was supposed to be land, was merely a mirage, or a deceptive ice pack colored and constituted in certain periods of the year so to resemble land.

Although the Peary was a bit crowded as to personnel, due to the fact that a number of her riders were men who will transfer to the Bowdoin, the trip from Boston, made on a perfect Summer night, was uneventful.

It brought out, however, that on the boy and girl amateur radio fans throughout the country the expedition will depend for reception of reports from the Arctic and their distribution to the world.

Commander Eugene F. MacDonald of the Peary, in charge of radio for the MacMillan expedition, stated today that the party is banking on young America as the connecting link with civilization and that boys and girls with home-made radio sets will accomplish more in Polar reception than high-powered government and commercial stations.

rent, moving out, will take Southern California's champion current away with it, and leave Florida the only "Winter climate." Needless to say, that does not worry California.

REDWOOD TREES, older than Christianity, stand as proof that California is fair and NOT fickle. This is a good place to say that, in addition to being a perfect Winter resort, California is the ideal Summer resort—all things to all men, in all seasons.

IN NEW JERSEY primaries the "dry" Republican wins the nomination from the "wet" Republican. So far, prohibition wins.

The decision will come on election day, when the "dry" Republican meets a "wet" Democrat. Since Governor Edwards became Democratic Governor on his promise to "make New Jersey as wet as the Atlantic Ocean," New Jersey's Democracy has been the wettest party in the country.

SENATOR LA FOLLETTE is reported dangerously ill. That news will grieve even his enemies, that tried to drive him out of his party.

You admire real courage, even when you hate a man for disturbing your plans. There is no more courageous man than La Follette in public life.

CHINA, huge dinosaur of the East, continues to take seriously her right to manage her own affairs. Crowds mob foreign policemen, 14,000 students demand that China break off diplomatic relations with England. And England, bothered by the Shanghai strike that ties up shipping, is inclined to make any reasonable arrangement.

IT PAYS to assert yourself, if you can follow it up.

On our side of the Pacific, Senator Borah, head of the Committee on Foreign Affairs, declares that Uncle Sam should mind his own business and let China mind hers.

He would have the United States give up all claim to special privileges on Chinese soil.

POLICE HUNT WOMAN'S ASSAILANT

WELLESLEY WIFE IS VICTIM

Attacked by Man Believed to Be Lunatic in Cellar of Her Home

State police and the police of Wellesley and Needham are searching for a man believed to be a lunatic, who attacked Mrs. Burton Whitney, nineteen-year-old wife of Burton Whitney, as she walked into the cellar of her home near the Needham line in Wellesley.

The man seized Mrs. Whitney, but the frightened woman broke loose and fled to the kitchen with the stranger in pursuit. According to the woman, the man called repeatedly to her, and from his language she believed him to be insane.

Mrs. Whitney's two-year-old son was playing on the kitchen floor. The mother eluded her pursuer, seized her child and fled screaming to the street. The man disappeared.

Mrs. Whitney was treated by a physician for a sprained wrist and an injured ankle, the injuries being suffered in the struggle with her assailant.

"DOT" PERKINS WAILS FOR MOTHER

New York, June 18 (Universal).—"Guilty——"

"Manslaughter in the first degree!"

Dot Perkins, the 17-year-old slayer of her suitor, Thomas Temple, crumpled silently on the breast of a court attendant. Heaving, gasping, clawing with her thin fingers, the girl was forcibly carried from the courtroom, facing 10 to 20 years in prison.

"Momma! Momma!"

The unearthly groans echoed just at midnight. The verdict had come as a horrible surprise to Dot.

The jury was out only three hours.

"This may stop women shooting men," Judge McIntyre commended the jurors whom he had charged to disregard any sympathy they might feel for the slender bobbed-hair defendant.

"It has been said here that the defendant is 17 years of age," he said, "but according to the laws of this State a person of that age is just as responsible for crime as one much older."

Dorothy will be sentenced on Monday. It was understood today that her counsel will appeal.

Four of the jurors favored a first degree murder verdict, it was learned. No juror advocated acquittal.

"Dorty didn't get a fair trial!" Mrs. Rudolph Perkins, mother of Dorothy, declared today. "We're just poor people so we didn't have a chance."

MAKEUP, NOT CIRCUS CASH, IN BOX 2 YOUTHS GRAB

Twenty-one-year-old John McAuley of Thomas park, South Boston, believes the end justifies the means, according to testimony given in South Boston court today by Special Officer J. L. Sullivan. McAuley was to be in court today to make restitution of money, for the larceny of which he received a nine-months' suspended sentence some time ago. But McAuley couldn't get the money.

Last night he visited the circus with James McDonough, twenty-two, of West Sixth street. According to Sullivan on the way out of a side show the two youths grabbed a box and ran. Half a dozen policemen pursued and captured them. They threw away the box, which the police thought contained receipts. But when it was opened it was found to contain paint, powder and rouge used by performers.

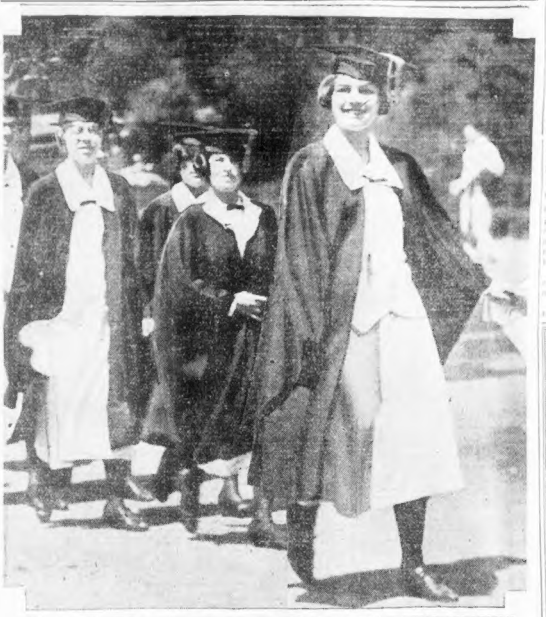
SLAYER OF WIFE GETS SENTENCE OF 15 YEARS

New Bedford, June 18.—Elie La Pointe of Greenwood Park, North Westport, charged with beating his wife, Marie, to death with a chair and a stove lifter, was found guilty of manslaughter.

Judge Dubuque sentenced him to from 15 to 20 years in prison.

The slaying occurred June 1, while La Pointe was in a drunken rage. Next day the victim's body was found almost naked in a meadow near the house.

RADCLIFFE HAILS GRADUATES



One hundred and fifty-two Radcliffe seniors received diplomas at Commencement Exercises at Sanders Theatre, Cambridge. The address was delivered by Miss Marion Edward Park, former Radcliffe dean and now president of Bryn Mawr College.

Below, top to bottom—Laura Sweet of Allston, received a degree of A. B. Magna Cum Laude; Fung-Yu-Sin, a Chinese girl, was awarded a degree of A. B.; Shia-Chin-Whang, another Chinese girl, was graduated with distinction in mathematics, and Esther Harrington of Smithville, the Class Baby.

BRITISH CONSUL FLEES MOB IN CHINA CITY

Shanghai, June 18 (A.P.)—Negotiations here between representatives of the foreign diplomatic corps at Peking and Chinese delegates, seeking adjustment of recent disturbances, were broken off today, owing to divergence of views.

At Chinse-Kiang the situation is critical. The British Consul was forced to leave his consulate and flee to the Linguen Temple.

British nationals have been stoned and assaulted.

London Sees Danger in Failure of Parley

London, June 18 (A.P.)—Official quarters have received no confirmation of the report that negotiations at Shanghai for the settlement of differences arising from the recent riots there have been broken.

However, officials expressed the view that if the report is true, serious complications may follow, and that the rupture of the Shanghai negotiations will probably affect adversely the more important negotiations under way at Peking.

WORCESTER N. E. SPEAKERS SCORE STUDENT LOAFERS

Worcester, June 18.—No man or woman can be "put through" college. They've got to go through. That was the burden of the messages of speakers at the commencement exercises of Worcester Northeastern University. Weaklings, loafers and spendthrifts were assailed. "Gold Coast" college boys were denounced. "There is a type of wealthy student sent to school by wealthy parents because it is the thing that is being done," said the Rev. Charles Reynolds Brown, dean of Yale Divinity School. "But as a rule, this class is immune to education, no matter how long exposed to it."

President Frank Palmer Speare said the serious part of the "jazz complex" was that many never lost it, but tried to go syncopating on through life, only to find out life was not done in ragtime.

BOYS 'ROTTEN EGG' SCHOOL PRINCIPAL

Greenfield, June 18 (A.P.)—Police today are investigating a bad egg attack on William D. Tillson, principal of the junior high school, which occurred in front of a local hotel where Mr. Tillson has rooms shortly before midnight.

Mr. Tillson, who was returning from the closing exercises of his school, met a shower of eggs just as he was entering the hotel, the missiles apparently being thrown by boys or young men from across the street.

At the exercises, which were conducted in the high school auditorium, several youths, not pupils of Mr. Tillson, created a disturbance in the gallery and were sent from the building. Police think this incident may have had something to do with the subsequent attack.

School authorities said today they would make every effort to secure out punishment to the guilty ones.

RAIL MEN TO CONFER ON PAY RAISE DEMAND

Cleveland, June 18 (AP)—Chairman's Associations of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen and the Order of Railway Conductors will hold joint divisional meetings in November to consider the proposition of seeking a wage increase from 200 railroads in the United States for trainmen and conductors, W. G. Lee, president of the trainmen, announced today. In 1921 a wage reduction to railroad men amounted to about 12 per cent. The request for an increase will probably be at least enough to make up this reduction.

EMPLOYE OF LAWRENCE GAS CO. 65 YEARS DIES

Lawrence, June 18 (A.P.)—Edmund E. Branch, for 65 consecutive years an employe of the Lawrence Gas and Electric Company, died at his home here, aged 83 years. He claimed the distinction of having been the first man in Lawrence to ride a bicycle. He was a native of Medford.

SAVE 'PRAYER BRIDE' PASTOR FROM MOB

Keansburg, N. J., June 18.—Only the determined front put up by half a hundred State troopers, deputy sheriffs and police prevented the earthly span of the Rev. George H. Lawson, former Roxbury, Mass., ward politician, from being cut short by an enraged mob of 800 Ku Klux Klansmen.

Lawson, who ran for the Legislature in Massachusetts several years ago and who later failed to obtain a government appointment in the census bureau, was former spiritual advisor of the Ku Klux Klan and one of the most enthusiastic members of the hooded order.

Some time since, he resigned, however, and at once became a bitter foe of the Klan.

The preacher received nation-wide notoriety, several years ago, when he was jilted at the church by a "prayer bride" and later married a woman employed in a laundry, whom he declared was sent him in answer to his prayer for a mate.

Since his resignation as spiritual advisor of the fourteen klavern of the Klan, which includes Keyport, Keansburg and Atlantic Highlands, Mr. Lawson has gone about the State preaching against the Klan.

'PRAYER BRIDE' AND PARSON HUSBAND

Parson George H. Lawson, Roxbury man who went to East Orange, N. J., and the laundry worker who responded to his prayers for a bride. He was saved from a klan mob, angered by his repudiation of the order, in Keonsburg, N. J., by the police.

MAN WHO STABBED SELF AND WOMAN MAY DIE

While Alfred Gianotti, war veteran and one of the organizers of the North End post of the American Legion, lay in a critical condition today at the Relief Hospital, police obtained a warrant charging him with assault and battery with intent to kill. In the same ward of the hospital is Mrs. Sarah Bonzi, forty-year-old widow and mother of five children. Hospital physicians fear Gianotti will die.

Gianotti is alleged to have stabbed Mrs. Bonzi yesterday when she attempted to withdraw her acheement to marry him. Then he turned the knife upon himself and, when the police came, dove out a window to the ground, thirty feet below.

CELEBRATES BY BEATING UP WIFE DURING SPREE

Robert Docket's celebration of the holiday started off well enough in his home at No. 14 Northfield street, Roxbury, the "night before," but when he and friends kept Mr. Docket's wife and four Docket children awake with a midnight piano and graphaphone "symphony," Mrs. Docket turned upon her and gave her such a beating with his fists and booted feet that it was necessary to remove the woman to the City Hospital, where physicians found her spine had been fractured.

In Roxbury Court today Docket was held in $1,000 bail for hearing July 2 on a charge of assault and battery.

SIGNS FOR AMERICAN ACCIDENT POLICY

George W. Kramer, welfare manager and chairman of the safety committee of the Thomas C. Plant Shoe Company, not only applied for a Boston Evening American $7,500 travel-accident policy but advised all employes of the factory to do likewise. "Golden opportunity" and "chance of a lifetime" were phrases applied by Mr. Kramer, in talking of the policy.

SHOE WORKERS URGED TO TAKE OUT POLICIES

Plant Factory Welfare Head Tells Workers to Take Out American Policy

George W. Kramer, welfare manager and chairman of the safety committee of the Thomas G. Plant Shoe Company, Jamaica Plain, not only affixed his signature to an application for the Boston Evening American $7,500 accident insurance policy but has urged the 2,100 workers in the factory to avail themselves of the opportunity as well.

"This is a golden opportunity," said Mr. Kramer. "It is a chance of a lifetime and one which nobody should miss. I never knew of any such wonderful offer before as the Boston Evening American placed before its thousands of readers, and only for the sum of one dollar.

"I recommend this proposition to you each and every one of you," he told the employes. "One never knows and it is always best to be on the safe side.

"Under the terms of the Boston Evening American $7,500 policy nothing could be more easy or simple to follow."

Miss Leah Campbell, an employe at the factory, believed in her official superior and she signed her name on the dotted line pointed out by the Boston Evening American representative, G. F. Foley of the North American Insurance Co.

"I, too, think just as Mr. Kramer does. It is a marvelous thing," she said.

40 Hurt Because Motorman Picks Up Glove

New York, June 18 (AP)—The stopping of a motorman to pick up a glove was held responsible today for an Elevated accident in which forty persons were slightly injured near the Yankee Stadium.

Morris J. Ryan, a motorman, told District Attorney McGeehan that a second or two before the accident he dropped his glove and stooped to pick it up. He said he had his eyes off a train that had halted ahead of his own. He was arrested on a charge of criminal negligence.

BUILDING KEEPS UP ITS FAST PACE HERE

Labor Conditions Scrambled, U. S. Observers Say; Many Hub Plants on Part Time

Labor conditions in New England are decidedly scrambled, according to the monthly report of the United States Employment Service. Building is active, but, as a general thing other trades are quiet.

In Lynn there is "a surplus of shoe workers." At Everett the shoe factories are on part time, with many persons out of work. Braintree shoe factories are operating with reduced forces. Office workers in Boston outnumber office jobs.

In Massachusetts at large a slight improvement is noted. Full time operations have been resumed in some sections. The textile industry is operating on part time. There is a shortage of metal trades workers in some cities. Building is general.

In Connecticut there has been a notable improvement. Some of the silk mills and rolling mills are operating overtime.

In Rhode Island virtually all industries are operating, but many on part time. There is that celebrated "surplus of workers" in the jewelry, textile and machine tool industries.

The silk mills are operating overtime.

Conditions in New Hampshire, Vermont and Maine are not greatly different.

BOOTLEGGER'S BULLET IMBEDDED IN HOUSE

Portland, Me., June 18 (A.P.)—A stray .45 caliber bullet, believed to have been fired during a bootleggers' feud off the Cape Elizabeth shore, lodged in the woodwork of one of the bedrooms of the Sumner residence of Robert S. Payson, an attorney on the Cape Shore road.

SALISBURY RUM CASES MUST BE TRIED

Judge James A. Lowell in Federal Court today threw out all motions to quash indictments, pleas at bar and demurrers which have been argued on behalf of defendants in the Salisbury Beach rum smuggling case.

All the defendants, including those who were acquitted or convicted in the trial of the case in 1924, must go to trial before a jury on the charge of violating the customs act. Those who are affected by Judge Lowell's ruling today are Dennis J. Kelleher, Mr. and Mrs. Harold F. Congdon, Everett B. George, Harry F. Burnham and Augustus Simpson.

Judge Lowell ruled those who were tried in the previous action were tried for violation of the Volstead act and that the charge of conspiracy to smuggle is another charge, although the facts virtually are the same. They demurred at the name Congdon appearing in the indictment several times with no given name to distinguish between Harold F. Congdon, Sarah Congdon and Harry Congdon, all three of whom are under indictment.

RUM PATROL MUST STOP HALTING PLEASURE BOATS

Washington, June 18 (A.P.)—The coast guard's Atlantic rum patrol has been ordered to cease halting and searching pleasure boats plainly recognizable as such, and operators of these craft in turn are asked to give the dry navy any information they may pick up concerning the smugglers.

Rear Admiral Billard, coast guard commandant, has directed that small yachts and similar pleasure-bent vessels be unmolested unless they attract suspicion by communicating with rum runners or hovering about the liquor fleet.

30-DAY SENTENCE FOR MAN WHO PUNCHED COP

The great and municipal court, holding in Pemberton square, decided today through Judge Burke that the punch—or alleged punch—packed by Samuel Seefer of No. 5 Holborn terrace, Roxbury, is a thirty-day blow. Seefer was charged with starting one from his shoe tops and ending it on the countenance of Patrolman John Leventhal of the Hanover street station, doing night traffic duty at Washington and Hanover streets. Seefer appealed the thirty-day sentence for assault and battery.

BONES OF PETER, THE CRUSADER, ARE FOUND

Brussels, Belgium, June 18 (A.P.)—The bones of Peter the hermit, one of the leading preachers of the first crusade, are reported to have been found at Huy while the ground covering an ancient cloister was being levelled.

Peter the hermit, also called Peter of Amiens, was born about 1050 and died at Huy, Belgium, on July 11, 1115. He led the advance of the first crusade as far as Asia Minor in 1096.

Oven—

with a capital "O"

Here is the big brother to your bake-pans—one of the revolving pans on which the new Sunshine Soda Crackers are baked in huge Sunshine Ovens.

Once around this great ferris-wheel each cracker takes its circular, joyous journey. Its ride is limited—just so long, not a second longer. For each revolution must be accurately timed to allow the carefully maintained Oven temperatures to bring out the finest flavor there is in a soda cracker.

This new Sunshine Soda Cracker

O! What a difference this new method of baking has made in the taste of the old common soda cracker! If you could look into the Ovens—rank upon rank of proud soda crackers, chests puffed out, swelling with goodness, ready to charge on any hungry mob—including the young ones you may have in your home.

They rally to the support of jelly, peanut butter, or milk to give your children the balanced diet that they need.

Served with soups or salads, their delicate elusive flavor is all that is needed to make these dinner courses perfect.

Made in a new way—the FULL GRAIN PROCESS

For many years, work has been going on behind the Thousand Windows of the Sunshine Bakeries in trial ovens and laboratories in attempting to bring out the true flavor of the soda biscuit. We knew it was there—but only recently have we been able to perfect the process, so that now you can buy new goodness in every package of Sunshine Soda Crackers.

In addition to this wonderful taste, the new Sunshine Soda Cracker is a real energy food. It is very high in calories (energy value). Four crackers contain 100 calories—of real value to the human system—every last one of them!

Note the shape. Three good reasons for the notched sides (patented):
1. Splits in two for sandwiches.
2. Less crumbling.
3. In baking, the notches form many vent-holes in the sheet of crackers: Result—more thorough baking and better flavor.

Sold only in the bright red package

"thousand window bakeries" by The Loose-Wiles Biscuit Co.

The Washington Convention of American Zionists will be held on June 28 and an election of American representatives to the World Congress to take place at Vienna on August 18, will be held.

The Zionist Organization of America in order to increase their number of delegates to the World Conference of Jews has sent out all over the country 'shekel' books. For every additional 2,000 'shekels' that are sold an additional representative can be sent. The 'shekel' look turns in the sum of five dollars and those interested in the Zionism movement are urged to turn in the money as soon as possible.

The purpose of this 'shekel' solicitation is to increase the American representation at the Zionist Congress. At this conference the Palestine budget will be definitely assigned; action will be taken to extend the Jewish Agency and make it the embodiment of all Jewish organizations rather than that of Zionists; an executive will be elected to conduct the affairs of the Zionist organizations for a period of two years.

Louis Lipsky, chairman of the American Zionist organization is leading the movement.

QUARRY PLANTS SET AFIRE

What is believed to have been an attempt to destroy three Quincy quarry plants by fire resulted in the destruction of the monument plant of John Horrigan, No. 125 Federal avenue, Quincy Adams, today.

Valuable statuary and models, including the famous memorial statue of Robert Burns, to be presented to the City of Quincy, were ruined.

In addition to Horrigan's plant incendiary fires also were discovered in the nearby granite works of Henry C. Smalley and polishing factory of the Leahy & Finn Granite Company on Brooks road. Both were extinguished with slight loss.

Sparks from the Horrigan plant ignited roofs of the homes of Frank McLaughlin, No. 115 Federal avenue, and Stephen Wykes, No. 119 Federal avenue. While firemen were responding to alarms for these blazes, which caused slight damage, a false alarm was sounded from a box a half mile away.

The blaze at the Horrigan plant was discovered by women living nearby. When the firemen arrived the sheds were ablaze and soon afterward were a mass of flaming embers. The loss is estimated at $10,000.

The most famous statue destroyed was that of the Scotch poet, for which a plot of ground recently was obtained on Franklin and School streets. Work on this statue and several other pieces of statuary nearly had been completed.

On their way home from the Horrigan fire Isabel and Sadie Douglas of Brooks road discovered a blaze around the door of the polishing factory of Leahy & Finn and extinguished it.

A pile of oily rags was found to be ablaze in the Smalley granite plant office, with a jug of kerosene nearby. The fire was extinguished with virtually no loss.

Mr. Horrigan, the sculptor of a well-known statue of the sinking of the Titanic, but among other things the desk mask of a former Massachusetts Governor.

New York, June 18 (I.N.S.).—The parents of Elizabeth Mary Cromwell, twenty-one-year-old society girl and sculptress, were awaiting further details today of their daughter's drowning at sea from the liner Veendam, bound for Rotterdam.

WHAT IF YOU ARE HURT OR KILLED IN A TRAFFIC ACCIDENT

It's a Horrible Thought, They Talking of You at Home; and You Falling in Front of the Traffic!

Foresight faces facts; and the facts about Travel Accident Insurance are startling. During the war period of 18 months, when 48,000 Americans were killed overseas, there were killed in the streets of the United States by traffic accidents 91,000 persons. The number has been growing annually. These were killed; HUNDREDS of thousands were INJURED. At times we are all apt to consider ourselves the special "pets of Providence." We are wise if on this belief does not keep us in danger until finally we are caught in the wreck of a train or the skidding crash of an automobile.

You may not be able to PREVENT the accident—but you CAN be prepared for it when it comes.

Porcellian, Hasty Pudding Spreads Mark Class Day

Latter Adds Afternoon Tea to Customary Noon Spread; Thirty-One Men Hosts

Betty Alden

PORCELLIAN CLUB AND HASTY PUDding Club men with their noon, afternoon and evening spreads punctuated Harvard's perfect Class Day with festivities of jolly student flavor. Dating parents, charming sisters and sweethearts out in force all did honor to the young men.

INNOVATION WAS the word at the Hasty Pudding. To their time-honored noon spread, outside under canvas, was added an afternoon tea, after the Stadium exercises, and open house all through the evening. Some "Old Trads" of the 1903 class had sons entertaining, and to all thirty-one men were hosts.

PHILIP W. CHASE, son of Philip P. Chase and Mrs. Chase (Anna Wigglesworth) of Milton, was a Pudding host. Mrs. Chase wore a frock of flowered silk in taupe and blue. Another interesting group was the Howard family, with Russell Dewart entertaining. Miss Frances Dewart, his sister, a youngster belle in blue, was much in evidence both at the Pudding and Beck affairs.

IN FACT, youthful femininity and their attending college swains vibrated from one jollity to another, going on from the Pudding to Beck Hall and later to the Yard for the Glee Club singing. Of the throngs thus animated were Mr. and Mrs. Henry B. Cult, the sometime Mary Atkinson. Mrs. Cult was in taupe satin.

ALSO MISS MARGARET WILLIAMS, radiant in a flowered chiffon; Miss Nancy Patten, the William S. Patten daughter, in an exquisitely becoming gown and chapeau of rose and white; Miss Louise and Miss Priscilla Waterman, the only twins among last Wednesday's hosts, in gowns of gray and mauve. Miss Barbara Forbes, a beauty of the young set, was in hand-painted chiffon, in white and rose with big picture hat.

MISS DOROTHY WELD, in white with deep fringes, danced tirelessly both at Pudding Club and Porcellian Spreads, the latter as usual set out in smart panoply within the gardens at Beck Hall famous Gold Coast home of wealthy and prominent men during undergraduate days.

THIRTY-ONE neat played host to the sunny, dazzling throng. The gardens were shelter-strung and open to the skies, with a stately Gothic church as backdrop to the kaleidoscopic picture, wherein Society held forth. Conspicuously in the fore were brides, prospective brides and many a maid chosen to grace the wedding entourage.

MISS KATHLEEN ROTCH, in pale rose, is now Mrs. Malcolm Greenough, the wedding a brilliant affair yesterday in Emmanuel Church. Also Mrs. Josiah H. Child (Ellen Lovering). Both Mr. Child and Mr. Greenough entertained. Miss Gertrude Russell, in green and white, with her father, Richard S. Russell, of Commonwealth avenue, and her brother, William A. Russell, were a family group.

THE MARRIAGE of Miss Russell to Benjamin Franklin Rice Bassett of New York, a prominent Harvard 1925 man, comes on Monday next, not at Andover, as Miss Frances Weld, in ecru chiffon, and Miss Elinor Sutton, in rose and white, are both slated for attendant honors in the Bassett-Russell bridal.

A CHARMING young matron not long since a bride, Mrs. John Jay Hicks Kerr (Helen Clark), came to the spread in a becoming frock of rose-designed chiffon. Mrs. Robert L. Raymond, Jr. (Olivia Howard), who said her marriage lines some two months ago at a smart and informal reception in Zorada, Switzerland, was in ecru net with floppy hat of Kina's blue.

ONE SAW, also, here and there, a bridesmaid frock that had been a colorful adjunct at wedding gowned. Miss Mary Hall and Miss Rosamond Richard, the two-time rose chiffons, the same frocks they wore at the marriage of Miss Eleanor Musgrave and John Gardner Pilin, and Miss Margery Richardson and Miss Mary Otis.

THOSE TWO lovely and popular were in yellow and white chiffons and Leghorn chapeaux. Just as they appeared at the Leslie Lindsey Memorial Chapel when Miss Helen Hamlin became the bride of Lelah Ten Brower of New York. Miss Aline Herrick, blonde and bonny daughter of Robert F. Herrick, to be a bride on Tuesday next, was in pale rose chiffon.

CHIFFON AND printed crepes were le dernier cri for Class Day and the Porcellian spread. All Boston smart femininity turned out in some version of those most becoming gossamer fabrics. Miss Catherine Robb, in white and ecru; Miss Frances Parkman, in black and white; Miss Polly Webster, in golden ecrue tone is newly the fiancee of Henry C. Harris of New York, and Miss Constance Percival, in orchid crepe, were there.

RADIANT AS usual and reining in for hosts of greetings and felicitations, Miss Mary Louise Burrfield, just back from London-town after a presentation at Court, was in rose and gray chiffons. Miss Polly Thayer was in black and gold. Miss Janet Saltine in black chiffon with pale pink, and Mrs. David Sears in white printed chiffon with touches of black.

MISS LAURA TAYLOR'S gerani um red and white frock, Miss Gertrude Taylor's orange and brown, Miss Barbara Register's tea rose pink frock, Miss Eunice James' Tatler, entertainers, Miss Grace Cushing's three-toned chiffon with picture hat of golden brown, were all effective on the dancing floor.

THE LAST NAMED, by the way, is off to New London and the Harvard-Yale boat races, the interest tomorrow for scores of wearers, past and present, of Harvard's well known crimson. Miss Cushing's mother, Mrs. George Cushing, of Milton, was a silk frock of blue with linen hat.

THE HALLOWELLS were an animated family group, Mrs. N. Penrose Hallowell, in dove gray, the color of her sensible sedan. Miss Thomas Hallowell and Miss Ellen Hallowell, sisters and daughters of the N. Penrose Hallowells of Readville, were in white frocks with opposing green flowers.

Mrs. Hallowell came out two years ago. Miss Ellen is to be a bud this Autumn, and both girls are just back from a year of study abroad. Mrs. N. Penrose Hallowell, their mother, was in an ensemble of golden brown. Robert H. Hallowell, Jr., and Mrs. Robert Hallowell Hallowell was a Beck Hall host.

MRS. NATHANIEL FARWELL Mayer, in pale rose chiffon; Mrs. Thomas Prince Beal, Jr., in flowered chiffon; Mrs. William DeFord Beal, in pink with orchid coat; Mrs. James Jackson, Jr., in paisley wrap over deep purple orchid chiffon; Mrs. Charles P. Curtis, Jr., in a printed crepe with small chapeau, skirted and cupped.

THAT HANDSOME matron, Mrs. George Nathaniel Mumford, mother of the George Mumford who is to marry Miss Herrick, was beautifully turned out in a white and gold frock under a wonderful gold velvet. Miss Isabella Mumford, her daughter, was in white with a wrap of peasant colors on white.

WRAPS, DEFIECTIVE and becoming, appeared on mid-ocean motion as the Scanes swept out of the world. Miss Margaret Curtis and Miss Penelope Curtis, daughters of Mrs. Edwin Upton Curtis, donned richly embroidered Mandarin coats and turned no doubt during their recent Winter in the Pacific over their chiffon frocks.

MRS. WOLCOTT HOWE JOHNson, just back in town from a visit with her son in the Middle West, was in gray chiffon with wrap of black lace; Mrs. Nathaniel Ropes, in satin laced chiffon, worn a stunningly designed wrap of golden brown with narrow bandings and garden hat in matching tones.

A NOTABLE MATRON in the throng, Mrs. Barrett Wendell of Chicago, had her two sub debutante daughters with her. Mrs. Wendell was Barbara Higginson and with her family is on to spend the Summer at the North Shore.

MRS. F. LOTHROP AMES, sailing soon abroad with her daughter, Miss Mary Ames, was beautifully attired in deep violet crepe with hat of black. Mrs. Gaspar G. Bacon in rose brown with transparent large hat. Mrs. George von L. Meyer, Jr., in red crepe with gay chapeau, and Mrs. Philip Weld (she and Mrs. Meyer are sisters) in ecru were conspicuous in the young matron set.

ALSO MRS. ROBERT H. STEVENSON, Jr., and Mrs. William G. Endicott (Louise Thorne), the former in orchid and mauve, the latter in a printed crepe of gray and blue; Mr. and Mrs. Horace Binney Hare, too, departing Europeward very soon. "A poor, plodding thing is father, in the eyes of young America. He never quite comes up to expectations, often mortifies the family by his lack of savoir vivre, by his slippers, worn tie, his imperfect acquaintance with some detail of grammar or in some one of a thousand other ways."

—Arthur Brisbane.

Yes, but he's our "Dad" and we're setting aside next Sunday, June 21st, to honor him and to show him that we don't care just how much "savoir vivre" he lacks.

BOSTON RADIO AMERICAN

VOICING THE GREAT VOICE OF DEMOCRACY OF THE AIR

Get the latest telegraphic news of the world over WNAC at 1:30 and 4:30 P. M. this afternoon, when it is broadcast from the office of the Boston Evening American. The baseball scores come on the air at 7:30 P. M.

THEATRE PARTY AT WNAC

The two successful after-the-theatre parties which have been given by the Duncan Sisters and principals of "Topsy and Eva," now playing at the Colonial Theatre, will be followed by a third, when these popular fun makers will appear at Station WNAC tonight at 11:40 p. m.

The two previous parties have been brim full of fun, and the insistence of the radio audience has led the management to arrange for an encore. If you want to listen to an hour filled with capital entertainment tune in on WNAC at 11:40 p. m.

The regular weekly feature for the entire Summer season, the United States Marine Band, under the direction of Captain William H. Santelmann, direct from Washington, will be heard again tonight from WGZ. This program will go on the air at 8:30 o'clock lasting for an hour and a half and will also be sent out by stations WRC, WJZ and WGY. The United States Marine Band concerts have met with the universal approval of a vast radio audience. This organization is noted as one of the premier military bands of the country.

Following the Marine Band concert Professor Andre Morie of Harvard University will read the best papers submitted by students in the radio French course, which he recently conducted over WBZ under the auspices of the university extension division of the State Department of Education. The reading of these papers by Professor Morise was scheduled to be given last Thursday, but was postponed until tonight.

The Radio Artists at 9 o'clock over WEEI are undoubtedly one of the finest musical features on the air.

Tonight their program opens with the overture, "Maritana," by Wallace, which will be rendered by the orchestra. The soprano, baritone, contralto and tenor will each be heard in individual solos and there will be various orchestral selections as well as Kamnak's "Fairy Tales" which will be played by the string quartet.

Nevada Has No Broadcasters

Nevada is the unique State in the Union, in that it does not support a single broadcasting station. Its neighbors, however, make up for any thing the Sage Brush State lacks.

California with forty-seven licensed stations, is at present leading the United States in the matter of radio broadcasting. With just two stations less, Illinois is second, and then comes Pennsylvania, with forty stations. Ohio has thirty-five voices and New York State is fifth with thirty-four.

RADIO FANS ELIGIBLE FOR LISTENERS' LEAGUE

New York, June 18 (A.P.)—Formation of the American Radio Foundation, with a listeners' league as one of its branches, is announced. Manufacturers and distributors of radio equipment, engineers and scientists interested in the development of wireless have been invited to join. Membership in the Listeners' League division is open to anyone who has a share in a radio set.

RETAIL BOARD FAVORS PHONE RATE RAISE

Sullivan Marvels at Action of Chamber of Commerce in State Hearing

If the NewEngland Telephone & Telegraph Company can prove its need of additional revenues, no opposition to increases will be made by the Retail Trade Board, provided they are fair and spread equitably among all classes of service.

The position of the board was made known today to the Public Utilities Commissioners by Daniel Bloomfield, its representative, at a continued hearing in the State House.

Prior to the statement of Bloomfield, Stoughton Bell, one of a special committee of three representing the Boston Chamber of Commerce, declared that "an intelligent decision" as to how much of an increase in rates is reasonable and its equitable apportionment among the various classes of service, involve many intricate and technical facts.

ASKS PUBLICS AID.

Such questions, he said, can be fairly judged only by "such a board in our Public Utilities Commission composed of five able men with a competent staff of accounting and engineering experts and assladied by eminent counsel."

The chamber commission believes the public should trust its commission and "help it feel it will have the support of public opinion in whatever it decides."

If the increases are granted, the report continued, and found to need revision after at last a yea's test, then such correction can be made by the commissioners.

The othr two members of the chamber's board, in addition to Bell, are Bernard J. Rothwell and Henry J. Nichols.

QUESTIONS PURPOSE.

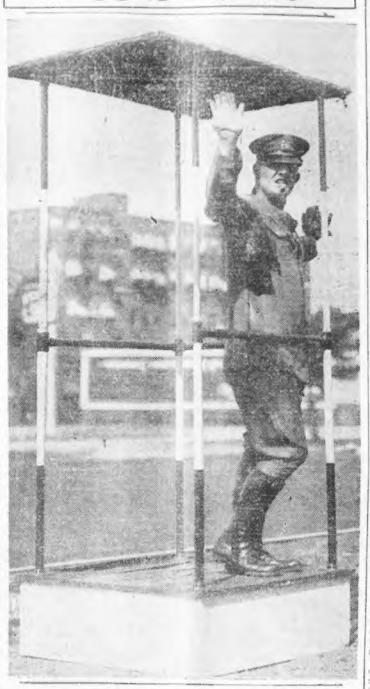
Corporation Counsel E. Mark Sullivan, at the conclusion of the reading of the committee's report, said he wondered why the Chamber made "this unusual move."

He declared that many other important cases affecting the public had been before the commission and the Chamber had not thought it necessary to take like action.

The Chamber's action in the present rate case, he characterized as "a little subtle."

Bell denied, in answer to a query by Sullivan, that he had ever been in the employ of the American Telephone Company.

ANOTHER REASON HUB IS KICKING



Traffic control platform at Commonwealth avenue and St. Mary's street, presided over by Traffic Policeman William P. Driscoll. This is one of the type of stands which citizens call unsightly and inefficient.

COMMISSIONER RAPS TRAFFIC STANDS

Major Charles T. Harding, member of the board of street commissioners, and president of the Harding Uniform Company, believes that the portable traffic stands now in use by the police department are a disfigurement to the streets.

Not only do they disfigure the streets in the business section of the city, but in the suburban districts as well and they have a tendency to slow down traffic, he asserts.

"I cannot recall that the police department submitted any such proposition to the commission of which I am a member, for our approval, before they introduced such atrocious stands to the public," said Commissioner Harding.

"I am in favor of the building of suitable stands for the traffic points of the city. Stands of a more artistic design than those now in operation. Stands more adaptable to Boston's narrow streets. Stands upon which the police officer stands so that he may be more plainly seen by autoists and pedestrians.

"The stands should be built higher than those at present. Stands that would be more serviceable to the officer directing traffic. I am of the opinion that a lighting system would be much better than the stands situated at highly congested points in the city, as they now are.

"A traffic tower might prove effective at certain points where traffic is heavy. A traffic stand on the street corner is another suggestion. The elevated stand would give free foot passage and also free movements for vehicular traffic as well. The officer would be protected from the elements and at the same time, have supervision from his lofty point of all that is going around him. The umbrella stands should be eliminated from the streets."

HIGHER COURT FINDS GUILTY IN DIVORCE CASE

Chicago, June 18 (A.P.).—The Superior Court's exoneration of the Rev. Carl D. Case, pastor of an Oak Park church, who was named by Albert R. Leland, a parishioner, in a suit for divorce, was overruled by the Appellate Court, which ordered the Superior Court to enter a divorce decree for Leland.

Leland accused his wife of improper relations with Dr. Case, and Mrs. Leland testified for her husband in the action. Dr. Case filed an intervening petition to clear his name and the lower court dismissed the divorce action.

RICHARD BENNETT FIRED FROM THEATRE GUILD CAST

New York, June 18 (A.P.).—Returning from Montreal where he had been since Saturday night, Richard Bennett, actor, found that he had been dropped by the Theatre Guild from the cast of the Pulitzer Prize Play, "They Know What They Wanted." Officials of the Theatre Guild said that Mr. Bennett failed to explain why he did not return for the performances Monday and Tuesday. The actor, however, said he suffered a complete breakdown in Montreal on Sunday and advised the Guild of his condition.

JUDGE HEARS SHEPHERD'S ACCUSER

Faiman Becomes Court Witness in Death Case After a Bitter Protest by Defense

Chicago, June 18 (A.P.).—His sponsorship relinquished by the prosecution, which for many weeks has had him under close guard, as its proclaimed chief witness, Charles C. Faiman was called as court's witness today in the Shepherd murder trial. He took the witness stand for direct examination by Judge Thomas J. Lynch.

This step was over the bitter protest of the defense, which argued that it would prejudice the jury and open up avenues of cross-examination for the state which otherwise would be denied.

Thrice previously Faiman had told a story that he gave Shepherd typhoid bacilli and taught him how to slay young "Billy" McClintock with them for a promise of $100,000 from the $1,000,000 estate the youth had willed to Shepherd.

Faiman, proprietor of the National University of Sciences, said Shepherd sent him a letter inquiring about a course in bacteriology and that after he had sent a representative to see Shepherd the accused man came to his institution.

Shepherd said he wanted to take a course in criminal bacteriology, Faiman said. Shepherd is a lawyer.

Shepherd wanted to see some germs, Faiman testified, and was shown some on a slide.

The defendant said he would return, said Faiman, and upon the second visit showed particular interest in typhoid and tuberculosis germs.

Shepher dasked how a person could be given germs and was told they could be introduced in food or in cold water ,said Faiman, adding that Shepherd wanted to know if the fact that germs had been fed a person could be revealed in a post mortem examination.

"The net tim el saw Shepherd he told he was the guardian of a boy named McClintock," said Faiman.

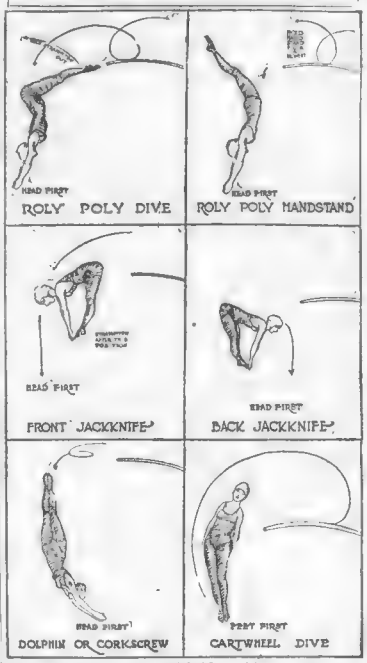
Fancy Diving Made Easy by Madeline Berlo



FANCY DIVING IS EASY TO MASTER

By MADELINE BERLO

Here is another article on the proper way to dive by Madelino Berlo, champion diver, who shows at Loew's Orpheum next week.

We have now arrived at the somersaults, jackknife and combination dives. Our first is the roly poly dive

The Roly Poly Dive.—The diver stands well back on the board and just lets herself go into a good old fashioned somersault coming to a sitting position on the edge of the b and Let legs stride of it. With out a moment's hesitation she turns right into the water head first, straight and to enter in a vertical graceful position

The Roly Poly Handstand.—For this you must follow the same procedure as for the Roly Poly, except that when you have landed in your sitting position on the edge of the board, the diver turns over on her hands and raises her body onto the arched back, vertical position she held for the handstand. After a moment's hold, she enters the water head first

The Front Jackknife.—The diver runs full length of the board and then casts off, up into the air, throwing the head forward and down, grasping toes and bring head to touch knee closing up like a jackknife, she then opens up, throwing limbs back into the air and strikes the water head first in a vertical, clear position

Back Jackknife.—The diver stands with her back to the water on the edge of the board, and casts the body back and up into the air, bringing the head forward and down, she grasps the toes and forethen the knees with her head, then throws the limbs back into the air and enters the water vertically head first. This is extremely difficult, for after casting off and upwards from a backward position the diver brings her head forward and down and skill must be shown in order to be far enough out to keep from striking the head on the board when making the jack closeup

The Dolphin or Corkscrew.—Run in length of the board cast off into the air, twist the body once around and strike the water in a vertical head entrance.

Cartwheel Dive.—Run on the board execute a cartwheel and cast off into the water, feet first.

The cartwheel that pride of the acrobat and circus performer, is merely standing on one's hands sidewards, quite the same as is done in the side somersault

Another interesting article tomorrow.

MEDBURY SAYS—

By John P. Medbury

A CHICAGO man has just opened a domestic training school where prowling husbands are taught how to sneak home at night.

ANY man can get out of the house, but very few of them know how to get back in.

IT requires practice to hop into bed at 8 A. M. and make your wife think you've been there all night.

A MAN has to learn how to imitate all the musical clocks and be able to cuckoo in seven different tones.

AN experienced husband usually takes his shoes off when he gets within two blocks of his house.

AND to insure absolute silence he even carries his socks under his arm.

HE generally whines when he's putting his key in the front door so that his wife will think it's the bulldog.

AND to make the deception complete, he chases the cat around the back yard a few times.

ONCE he gets into bed and closes his eyes he's all right. No woman will strike her husband while he's sleeping.

IF she's a lady she'll wake him up before she hits him.

ONE man has the knack of climbing into bed backwards and his wife thinks he's getting out.

OF course sometimes he has a hard job explaining to her how he happened to go to bed with his hat on.

HE told her he had been lying there all night and in the morning she found the bed full of poker chips.

HE said it wasn't his fault. He had a dream that he was playing cards.

SOME women wait up all night for their husbands. One dame had been waiting three years and he hasn't come home yet.

SHE says she's going to wait two years more and then go to bed.

IF your husband leaves the house after dinner and doesn't return for six months, the chances are he's going to be late.

ANY man who stays away from home this long isn't necessarily a deserter. He's probably a coward.

FAMOUS FIRSTS

By Mark Stuyvesant

THE scene is a metropolitan railway depot. Everywhere people are standing, discussing excitedly the coming journey. Porters rush to and fro carrying luggage and shouting. Here and there stand groups of people poring over books. A man, necktie awry, approaches a booth marked "Information." "Can I get a train for Chicago, tonight?" For answer the clerk passes a long white booklet to the inquirer, and says, "Consult this and you will obtain your information."

But remember, this takes place in 1835. There was a time when railway guides were unknown. Travelers stood in long lines outside the information booth, usually the only one in the depot, and waited their turn to "pop the question." The teller, because he had so many duties, was often cross and irritable and consequently service was not always good. But since the compilation of time tables this inconvenience was done away with and all you need do is consult your guide before making reservations for a train.

The first railway time table was published in 1839 by George Bradshaw, a Manchester Quaker and map engraver. Although a London newspaper disputed this fact, it has been proved that what time tables preceded Mr. Bradshaw's were really unreliable and often inaccurate.

The guide compiled by Mr. Bradshaw (four copies of this are now in existence) was a much less prosaic-looking affair than the tables now in use. It contained, in addition to the scheduled arrival and departure of trains, information about the places through which the railway passed. According to the London Globe of 1839, this pamphlet of six pages, bound in green with gilt lettering, actually described the scenery along the route of the railway.

Early numbers of the guides furnish curious reading. Trains are described as "first class," "second class," "mixed," "fast" and "mail." To third class passengers was accorded the privilege of riding on the roofs of other cars or in open wagons much like the freight-cars of today.

The guides cautioned such passengers to wear overcoats and gauze spectacles. Tickets were called "checks" or "passes." Seats bore numbers corresponding with the number of the ticket (the system we use in the theatre today) and fares were regulated according to the time of travel. Thus, if you wished to economize, you might travel at 12 midnight or from 3 to 5 in the morning.

BUNNY SAVES A BABY'S LIFE

By Foxy Grandpa

"DO you know," said Bobby one day to me, "that big Arab did the strangest thing this afternoon."

"What, Bobby?" I asked. "Everything seems strange to you naturally in this country. Things are so different."

"Well," said Bobby, "I never saw a man in any country take a perfectly good gun and throw it in the river.

"That is extraordinary, I will admit," I said. "I wonder what made him do that."

The next time I had an opportunity to speak to the Arab Bobby had mentioned, I asked him about the gun and what do you think he told me?

That Arab had killed a hyena with that gun and in Arabia they despise hyenas to such a degree that they consider it below the dignity of man to kill them. And if a man should kill a hyena, he throws away the spear or gun he has used. When I asked him if they just let the hyenas run wild he told me very emphatically that they didn't, but that they only threw mud in the faces of the hyenas, tied up their legs and gave them to the women and children to stone to death.

I always knew that hyenas were cowards—pow skulking, treacherous creatures that they are, but I never dreamed that there was such contempt for them.

Soon after that, however, I had reason to agree with the Arabs that they shouldn't have the honor of being killed by a man. And I will tell you why.

We were staying for a few days with a nomad tribe and, like the nomads, we slept in tents.

We had been riding all day and when I lay down that night to go to bed, I fell asleep the moment my head touched the pillow.

It seemed only a few moments that I had been asleep when I felt a tug at my arm. I awoke suddenly to find that I must have been asleep for hours, because the first streaks of dawn were in the sky and the light was just starting to come through the flap of my tent.

"Foxy Grandpa," whispered Bunny, "come quickly and bring your gun."

I jumped up, reached for my revolver which was under my pillow and followed Bunny out of the tent.

Silently he led the way to the next tent and then back of that one to the other. Then he stopped and gave me a frightened look. I moved forward and looked. No wonder Bunny looked scared. For there, just about to nose his way under the tent and crawl in was the meanest looking hyena I ever saw.

I didn't want to shoot him. But I knew he would work havoc in that tent and, as it happened, there was a mother with her little baby sleeping alone in that tent. Her husband was off on a trip in the mountains.

I thought for a moment and I thought quickly. I knew what cowards those fellows were and how they will even run from a child with a stick in his hand. So I took a chance. I just raised the butt of my revolver, gave a whoop and brought it down with a sharp crack on the hyena's back. What a howl he let out and how he did dust! He was out of that camp before all the natives were out of their tents!

"Good boy," I said to Bunny. "How did you happen to know that fellow was around?"

"I smelt him, Foxy Grandpa," said Bunny, "and then I found him. I knew the wretch would go into that tent and take the baby right out of its mother's arms without waking her up. They do that, you know. Of course I couldn't do anything. But I knew you could."

"No wonder not only men but animals despise hyenas," I muttered, as I went back into my tent to get forty more winks.

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, June 18.—The swimming pool party is not merely a jest of the comic weekly. Two have been held this summer—one in town and the other at a sixteen room Long Island villa. Each was a dinner with tables arranged around edges of the pools.

Guests donned their bathing habiliments after arriving and splashed around in the pool while cocktails were served. After drying out a bit they were served with a course dinner. And after cigarettes they repaired to the pool again where butlers in swimming togs served cordials.

The invitation to one merely gave the name of the host, a bachelor, and said "Aquatic Soiree—Bring your bathing suit!" Such innovations are of course welcomed by the blase of Mayfair, but the one on Long Island almost resulted in a backfire of scandal.

So it is presumed aquatic dinners will not be popular. One of the ladies, it appears, became slightly squiffed and although she could not swim the idea grew that if Steve Brody took a chance from Brooklyn Bridge she could from the rise of a silly three-foot marble slab.

She did in water over her head when a gother butler—literally and figuratively—rescued her just as she was nearing the pulmotor stage. She will now confine her Annette Kellerman aspirations to the bathtub. But the swimming pool idea will not die.

Very few private homes are being built these days without an elaborate pool. A new apartment house advertises they have two 18 room apartments with a private swimming pool in each. The rent, by the way, is only $32,000 a year. Just a mere splash!

Young nobs have at last found something new in shirts. Colored ones with collars to match have had a long reign and will likely continue popular, but a new note has slipped in. It is the heavy lumberjack shirt with soft rolling attached collar and big squares of various hues. I saw one on the avenue. The wearer also had low shoes of black and tan squares. That, as Picadilly would say, is almost "getting at one."

Just as the Bowery girls imitate their more fortunate sisters uptown so do Bowery hotels. The Bowery has lodging houses named Plaza, Chatham, Savoy, Waldorf, Majestic and Astor. These are the dim-lit havens, in most instances, that the Bowery knows as "flop joints."

A New Yorker was talked out of the idea of investing $5,000 in Abie's Irish Rose" when it looked as though it was destined for the gloom of a theatrical warehouse. He had the check made out and everything. That investment would have netted him a cool million up to this writing. (I wonder why we call a million cool? It would likely burn up most of us.)

My sympathy for the husband so easily swayed in his theatrical venture is keen. I talked out of my own hat in a hotel checking room the other day and my mail is convincing proof that I am on the "sucker list" of every commercial scheme hatched in Wall street. Bright young men who phone me they are "putting their proposition only in the hands of a carefully selected list of prominent men," receive my most courteous attention.

Ten criminals corraled for a trip to Sing Sing were asked a list of questions. All but two admitted using hard liquor, four using narcotics, five said they had at various times taken money from women, not one had written to relatives in years, but all admitted they had at some time or other written anonymous letters.

FINANCE

By B. C. Forbes

San Francisco, June 18.—Suppose 99 per cent. of the newspapers were against your somebody, and suppose you were shown how to win over 92 per cent. of them, wouldn't the information be worthwhile?

One large corporation, the Alabama Power Company, has just accomplished this—and much more. In recognition of such a record a good will building, I had the privilege in connection with the National Electric Light Association convention of presenting a large silver cup to the company.

How can public condemnation be turned into public commendation? Do the right thing—and then advertise to beat the band.

Just what did the Alabama Power Company do?

When it was discovered that calcium ammonium nitrate, half the ball, was still an acute scarcity and possibilities prices developed, the company put its added mind to the job; he discovered an improved electrolytic process, a factory was turned over free to an operating company, and large supplies were furnished farmers at prices they could pay.

Cooperating with agricultural colleges and societies, the company began holding rural lines to serve several thousands of farmers, operated experimental stations to determine the best ways for farmers and farmers' wives to use electricity, and sold them power at the low rate charged city consumers.

New industries were attracted. For several years a nation-wide advertising campaign has been conducted, each advertisement emphasizing some particular locality, natural resources, State laws governing taxation, and every other inducement Alabama offers. Reprints are sent out. Motion pictures, exhibits at national and international expositions, radio broadcasting, personal solicitation, are used.

Results: The State's cotton spindles have increased from 73,000 to 1,300,000 and such industries as steel, cement, clay, wood-working have increased almost as much.

In 1920 the company did not have a single stockholder in the whole State. Now, more than 100,000 residents have paid fully $12,000,000 for about 100,000 shares of preferred. Part is owned in remote rural districts never before penetrated by stock salesmen. Most of the stock is held by company employes, themselves stockholders, on a commission, and spurred on by weekly and annual cash prizes.

The campaign is backed up by regular advertising in more than 120 Alabama newspapers.

"EARMARKS OF YARN" IN LIVERMORE STORY

Chicago, June 18 (A. P.).—Commenting upon published reports that Jesse L. Livermore had sold vast amounts of grain futures short, J. W. P. Duval of the United States Department of Agriculture, declared "the story has all the earmarks of a bear leg-pull with the purpose of influencing the market."

"Personally I think someone was trying to mislead the buyers by making it appear that Mr. Livermore might be short 5,000,000 or perhaps 20,000,000 bushels last Spring," Mr. Duval added. "But what he did last Spring makes no difference now. I do not know whether he traded in this amount of futures, but it makes no difference whether he did or not. It could not influence the present market normally."

SIGHTSEEING AIDS BUSINESS IN BOSTON

By FRANK H. MELOON,
Financial Editor.

Sightseeing is considerable aid to business in Boston, as well as in the rest of New England. Toonsen's visit this section during the year, drawn here partly by our plentiful preservation of spots of historic interest, in the national limelight ever since America was young.

This thought occurs in connection with a movement now being made under leadership of Clerk Charles F. Read, to obtain more members for the Bostonian Society, which preserves the Old State House on Washington street. Incidentally few are aware that this property, formerly used as a city hall, is owned by the city of Boston and leased by the Bostonian Society for $1 a year. The society charges $30 for a life membership and $5 for annual membership.

Grenville H. Norcross is president of the Bostonian Society. Its committee on membership includes Charles H. Taylor, William L. Alden, Louis Barton, Alexander W. Longfellow and Allan Forbes.

First National Bank of Boston, in New England letter issued today, says: "A growing confidence and a tendency toward price stabilization are the outstanding features of the business situation. The business movement has been kept well in hand since the first of the year, with more gradual retrenchments than during the corresponding period a year ago. Inventories in general are moderate, price fluctuations narrow, future commitments conservative, and the balance between production and consumption well maintained. Readjustment between industries is on a better basis, with abnormal price disagreements undergoing gradual correction."

I am informed that nearly one-fifth of total wealth of United States, amounting to $320,850,862,000, covered by the 1920 census, was represented by $60,663,206,878 of listed securities on the New York Stock Exchange.

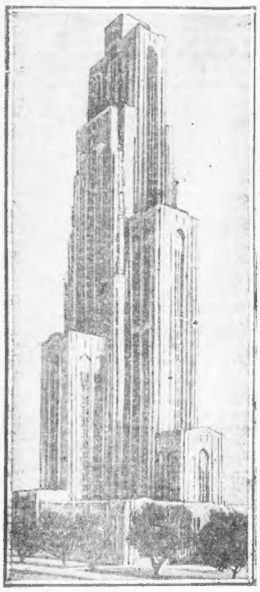
A Great University

An Inspiration to Architects and All Mankind



This magnificent 52-story "Cathedral of Learning" shows the new university to be built at Pittsburgh.

The City of Pittsburgh and its admirable university set an example to the rest of the world in the building of this magnificent modern, entirely original temple of learning, shooting fifty-two stories up toward the sky. Concerning this new American university, Chancellor Bowman of the University of Pittsburgh, says:

"Here, then, fabricated out of steel and stone, is a structure with more power, spirit of achievement and REVERENCE in it than has ever before been attempted in the world."

Pittsburgh's university, in erecting this building, sets an example to the rest of the world, develops a new thought. This structure will rebuke, as it should be rebuked, the timidity that in other great cities limits and holds down the height of buildings. "It hath not yet been shown what we shall be," and it has not yet been shown what we shall build. Give the genius of the builder and architect a chance.

The flying machine is here. Men will soon enter their abodes no longer from the ground, but from the air, THROUGH THE ROOF.

It does not take much imagination to realize how inspiring a sight this great sky-piercing university will be, to boys and girls that gather from all over the country to take their places as students in this magnificent building.

Of this beautiful and well designed university, the Chancellor of the University says eloquently:

"The university desires to interpret by its building the active emotion of courage, daring, achievement, together with spiritual aspiration. How can this be done? First, the use of mass and proportion is imperative. This use requires height."

This magnificent building does indeed stand for force and power, and above both is the grandeur, the spiritual nobility of such a structure.

The ancients believed in a Tower of Babel, in which presumptuous men would have climbed up into the heavens. Modern man knows that if he went to the moon, and on beyond more than 90,000,000 miles to the sun, he would still be "near the earth," still tied down to our little solar family circle.

Men build such magnificent buildings as this, not to climb into the heavens as the foolish ancients imagined, but to rise a little above our earth, and into the clear atmosphere with a wide view, to bring down from heaven the knowledge that will mean man's earthly salvation, physical and spiritual.

The Curse of Deafness?

What Causes It? Can It Be Abolished?

Scientists believe that deafness can be avoided, and that eventually the deaf-mute, so pitifully afflicted, will be unknown.

The discussion supplies facts, interesting to those, comparatively few fortunately, that are deaf-mutes, and to millions whose hearing is more or less affected.

Graham Bell, who invented the telephone, in the effort to find something that would enable his deaf wife to hear, estimated the number of deaf-mutes in the United States at 90,000. At the rate of one per thousand there would be in all the world about 1,000,000 human beings unable to hear or speak.

It should be understood that a deaf-mute is in no way DEFICIENT, mentally or otherwise, except as regards his hearing or speaking.

The difference between the ordinary person suffering from deafness and the ordinary deaf-mute unable to speak or hear is based on the fact that the deaf-mute, DEAF FROM BIRTH, has never heard a word spoken, and therefore cannot speak. We forget sometimes that speech like so many other things is IMITATION.

Unless we had heard others speak, and had imitated speech as you see children imitating it, not one of us would possess a spoken language.

Great progress has recently been made, and greater progress will be made in the treatment of deafness. At Johns Hopkins University specialists of great skill produce excellent results.

Much semi-deafness, especially in children, is caused by temporary obstruction of the ear channel. See a doctor, don't experiment on your ears. Don't try old women's remedies, pouring in sweet oil, etc.—nearly all dangerous.

Remember the very old Chinese proverb: "Never pick at your ear with anything EXCEPT YOUR ELBOW."

MRS. SOLOMON SAYS—

By Helen Rowland

WHO is this, my daughter, of whom every married woman dreameth?

Who is this, that every husband beseth with a deadly hatred?

Behold, it is HE, the Man-Who-Never-Was!

He wipeth not his hands upon the embroidered guest-towel, nor on feet upon the Persian rug in the hall.

Helen Rowland

He leaveth not his hat upon the dining-room table, nor his burning cigar-stub upon the mahogany console.

He throweth not his soiled collars upon the floor of the closet, nor fingeth his wet bath-towels upon the back of the hand-painted chair.

He seeketh not to add lustre to his shoes with the tail of his soiled shirt, nor to brighten his fingernails with the guest-room buffer.

He borroweth not his wife's hairpin to fasten down his cravat, nor her nail file to pick the look of the medicine cabinet.

He useth not ALL of the hot water without warning, nor taketh the last aspirin tablet without giving the alarm.

He eateth not the tempting Spring onion at luncheon, nor "spoileth his appetite for dinner" with a belated repast.

He leaveth not the cork out of the peroxide bottle—nor shutteth the cat in the closet.

He taketh not seriously the "pinholes" in his socks, nor is too fastidious to fasten his garments with a safety-pin.

He throweth not his burnt matches in the gas-log grate, nor placeth his ashes in the long-necked vase whence they cannot be extracted.

He borroweth not the children's playtools — nor abandoneth the painting of the garage when it is half-finished.

He faileth not to praise his wife's cooking—and forgetteth not to KISS her—occasionally.

What though he be a burglar by profession, a moron by nature, and a Don Juan by choice?

Still, shall women continue to sing his praises, and to delight in the sweet dream that SOME day, their husbands may be like unto him!

For, he possesseth all the Virtues-of-Omission, which no living husband hath ever attained!

Yea, he is the Household Paragon, of whom every married man hath HEARD! He is the Man-Who-Never-Was!

SELAH.

THE RHYMING OPTIMIST

By Aline Michaelis

WHEN sorrow comes, as it must to all, while the ranks of the years march by, when the old hopes fail and the old joys pall and the lights of the old dreams die, do not yield up your spirit to vain regret for the beauty and bloom that is past; do not sigh for the sweets you cannot forget, for the flowers too fragile to last. But instead turn your face, as the brave men do, to the light of the coming day and be sure all these shadows your road runs through will be swept by the sun away. For when troubles come, as through life they must, you can lessen the blows as they fall if you go on your way with a boundless trust that the sunshine comes back to us all.

GERMANY'S VOTE FOR VON HINDENBURG

By DR. FRANK CRANE

BY its recent election voting in Germany is called to our attention.

The women can vote there.

Most of the women voted for Von Hindenburg. As a rule they voted for him because they knew him. The years that he was leader in the army familiarized his name to all the people.

Folks vote for a person they have heard about or know and like more than they vote for his opinion.

Von Hindenburg, being a war leader of prominence for years, was known to all the people of Germany.

Voters in Germany are required to be twenty years old instead of twenty-one as with us.

Elections are held in Germany on Sundays or holidays. The Constitution requires this.

Our elections are held on other days than Sundays, on which day workers are allowed to take time off to vote without loss of pay. The election occurring on Sundays or holidays makes the German vote much larger than our own.

The general trend of opinion here seems to be that Germany had a right to choose any President she wanted. Some fear that the election of Von Hindenburg means the return of monarchy and militarism. Others hold that he is too old for such nonsense and that he is thoroughly pledged to the republic.

The election properly means that Germany is gaining its self-respect. It is true to itself. Von Hindenburg is a characteristic German and stands for that nation in the minds of most people.

The President of Germany has much less power than our own President. He cannot veto bills and he cannot make laws. All of his proposals must be subject to a vote of the Reichstag, the members of which are chosen by popular vote.

He can recommend anything he wants to, but it must be carried out by the legislative body.

Mr. Borah, chairman of the Committee on Foreign Affairs in the United States Senate, does not think any harm will come from the election of Von Hindenburg.

The old soldier says he does not want any more war, and Germany is in no condition to have a war if she should want one.

Over thirty million German men and women voted, but less than half of them voted for the successful candidate.

Republicanism is on trial in Germany. It is essential to a republic or democracy that the people should do what they want to do. They may do wrong, but they learn only by making their own mistakes.

GREATER COLDNESS OF SOUTH POLE

By Garrett P. Serviss

Noted Astronomer and Writer of Scientific Topics of Popular Interest.

"I would be grateful if you would tell me why the South Pole is colder and of greater extent than the North. Since the sun is approximately 3,000,000 miles nearer during Summer in the Southern Hemisphere than during the same season in the Northern Hemisphere, does it follow that the heat is more intense 'there' than 'here'—and if it is, why is the South Pole colder?"

—F. H.

THE effect of the greater nearness of the earth to the sun during the Southern Summer appears to be counter-balanced by the much vaster extent of the oceanic areas as compared with the land in the Southern Hemisphere.

The ocean is always a cooling agent. There are, of course, hot days at sea, but not in general comparable with hot days ashore, and especially in the central portions of great continents.

What is the first thing that you notice on sailing out of a harbor on an Atlantic voyage in mid-Summer? It is the delicious coolness of the sea's fresh breath coming to you over the breeze-wrinkled waves. That is the general character of ordinary ocean weather.

Both South America and Africa, the chief Southern continents, narrow toward the South, leaving the broadest ocean expanse of the globe spreading about them on both sides.

The ocean cools the air above it because of the continual vaporization of the sea water. The passage of the vast quantities of liquid into the vaporous state demands the absorption of a great deal of heat.

This is used up in expanding the water into vapor and keeping it in the vaporous condition. On the other hand, when clouds of vapor condense into water, heat is set free and the surrounding atmosphere is warmed.

The same opposite processes occur when water is frozen into ice and when ice is melted back into water. The freezing of the water releases heat; the melting of the ice absorbs heat.

In every case when a substance passes from a more dense to a less dense state—as water into vapor, or ice into water—heat is absorbed to drive the molecules of the substance farther apart.

But when the cloud condenses into rain, or the water freezes into ice, heat is released. The shores of a river become warmer when ice is forming over its surface and cooler when the ice is melting.

The southern Winter occurs when the earth is farthest from the sun. It is also longer than our Winter, for the very reason that it occurs with the sun at its greatest distance, because in the more distant part of its orbit the earth's velocity in journeying around the sun is slower than in the nearest part of its orbit.

These conditions favor the existence of a relatively low temperature in the southern hemisphere as a whole.

But there is another controlling reason for the existence of a vast ice-covered region around the South Pole, and that is the great elevation of the land that occupies probably the greater part of the area within the Antractic circle.

The Antarctic continent is in mean elevation, perhaps, the loftiest on the globe. That fact alone would suffice for its being buried under an eternal burden of ice, whose extent is greater than that of any other ice mass on the earth.

The North Pole region is occupied by a deep sea, which, to be sure, is covered with a slowly drifting roof of ice, but this is not comparable in area or in bulk with the mighty ice floes of the south.

The effect of elevation in producing a settled cold climate is familiar to meteorologists and geographers, and it has played a great part in the later geological history of the northern continents, especially North America.

The Glacial Age is a late period in geology, and some think that its principal cause may have been a relatively high elevation of this continent, traces of the former existence of such a condition being well known.

One of these is the still discernable trench in the submerged continental border, which extends out from New York for hundreds of miles, revealing the former course of the Hudson River, when the eastern part of our country lay at a relatively great elevation, and the shore line was far east of its present position.

ONCE-OVERS

WHY COURTESY TOWARD EMPLOYES BRINGS PROFITS IN DOLLARS AND CENTS

As an employer of many men you often wonder why it is that those employed by you meet your pass with such a hard, set expression.

When you walk through your establishment do you not give your men the impression that they are merely a part of the machines they operate?

This being true, what do you expect from them?

You give them jobs, 'tis true, and pay them for their services, but you would not employ them if it were not for their profit to you.

It's not philanthropy on your part to give these persons work.

You are getting the value of your outlay if your help is efficient.

But you would get a different atmosphere from your workrooms if you would enter them with an expression which radiates good feeling toward your workers.
